To Whom It May Concern:

In 1974, Earnest Wheaton made a bold decision to move the corporate headquarters of Wheaton Van Lines, Inc. to a new custom built campus in Castleton, Ind. He took great pride in building a facility that was cutting edge and tailored to the needs of the transportation industry. The building continued to meet our needs until 2011 when Wheaton began to explore the acquisition of a major competitor. If successful, we faced an extremely aggressive construction schedule for the necessary renovations of our existing building, as well as a significant building addition.

After interviewing several general contractors, we felt most comfortable with the scope of work and attention to detail provided by T&W General Contractors. We began initial discussions with them in June of 2011 asking "what if" questions. By July we had moved through the investigative phase and were ready to proceed with preliminary plans, budget discussions and construction documents. Construction began in late November of 2011 and our renovations and new addition were completed on schedule in May of 2012.

Doug Beamer, T&W's Business Development Manager, was a quiet guiding force as we made all the initial decisions in a matter of weeks. We can't begin to express our appreciation to Doug; project manager Andrew Huey; and Jeff Hasty, job superintendent. They and their entire crew worked long hours and weekends throughout the holidays and entire winter to ensure the construction timeline stayed on schedule. They responded to our questions, concerns or last minute changes quickly and with the utmost professionalism.

We are thrilled with how the remodel and addition turned out. The transition between the old building and the new addition is seamless – which was no easy task. Visitors continue to be amazed at the transformation of our property.

I would highly recommend T&W and its employees without hesitation. We found them to be people of integrity who honored their word and provided a quality product - characteristics often hard to find in today's world. If you are considering using T&W and would like to see an example of their workmanship, I would be more than happy to give you a tour of our corporate headquarters.

Sincerely,

Mark Kirschner
